PARK READY AND TEAM IS ON HAND.

Everything in Good Shape For Playing Ball in Hopkinsville.

TWENTY MEN HERE.

Improvements Have Been Completed and Diamond Leveled for Business.

Manager Lou Rutledge, of the League team arrived Wednesday night and by Thursday the following strong array of players had reported for a try-out:

OLD TEAM.

Chas. Bomar, pitcher.
R. A. Pettifer, pitcher.
H. Alexander, pitcher.
Harry Meyer, 1st base.
Robt. Barlow, right field.

NEW MEN.

Louis Schan, catcher.
Henry Hale (deaf mute), pitcher.
Jack Kiley, out fielder.
Paschal, Crittenden, Parrish, Eckhart, infielders; Brown, Neil, Veach and one or two others.
Morris and Brady will come next week. They are practicing in Evansville. Keith, Collins and one or two more are to be given a chance.

Hardy Hadden, a local player, has reported for a trial.

The sale of the old park is still a matter of some uncertainty, but the directory has decided not to move until it has to and the improvements at the park were practically completed yesterday. A wire fence encloses the south fence and the ground will be posted. The east and north fences have been raised two feet higher. The entrance has been moved up beyond the foul line and a ticket office built. A telephone will be put in to-day. The contemplated changes on the grand stand will not be made now.

The diamond and fields were overhauled and leveled up yesterday and everything is being put in good shape.

There are men enough here to have some match games next week.

Manager Rutledge has taken hold like a veteran and it may be accepted as a certainty that the team this year will be made up of winning material.

FOR SMALL COLLEGES

Tennessee and Kentucky Institution to Get Gifts From D. K. Pearsons.

Chicago, April 19.—Gifts amounting in all to $250,000 will be made this year to small colleges in the rural districts of Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and West Virginia. This announcement was made to-day by Dr. D. K. Pearsons, capitalist and benefactor of many small colleges in the United States. "I am not going to give to any rich colleges," said Dr. Pearsons. "I have a lot of colleges to choose from in distributing the $250,000 that I have decided to send down South."

Pool Tables Win.

The Court of Appeals held that under the new revenue law no State license can be collected on rooms wherein are kept pool tables for hire. The court says the Legislature omitted to incorporate the section contained in the old revenue law requiring the payment of a license tax.

Easter Day.

To-morrow is Easter Sunday and there will be a special service appropriate to the occasion held at Grace Episcopal church.

There was an evening session at which E. A. Fox gave his lecture on the Holy Land, with stereopticon views.

The people of the Olivet neighborhood provided a bountiful dinner for everybody, which was spread on tables in the church yard.

Rev. T. C. Gebauer, who was expected, did not arrive. A large delegation of Hopkinsville people attended.

Rev. A. D. Litchfield and Mrs. Geo. McCombs were re-elected president and secretary respectively. Appropriate resolutions were adopted.

NARROW ESCAPE

From Drowning By Mrs. H. G. Renshaw.

Mrs. H. G. Renshaw had a narrow escape from drowning Wednesday at the iron bridge on the Palmyra pike six miles south of town. The water is from six to ten feet deep at that point and while engaged in fishing, in company with her husband and others, Mrs. Renshaw lost her balance and fell headlong into the stream. As the day was cool and she had on heavy clothing, she at once sank and was soon in a drowning condition. Mr. Renshaw at once divested himself of his coat and sprang into the water to rescue his wife. He swam to her as she was sinking the second time and with the assistance of his father, Prof. F. H. Renshaw, and two colored men, succeeded in getting to the bank in safety. In climbing out he broke his watch chain and lost his watch in the stream. Mr. and Mrs. Renshaw after securing dry clothing returned to the river and resumed the interrupted fishing. Only one fish was caught.

We are authorized to announce
JOSEPH E. MOSELEY

As a candidate for the nomination for State Senator in the Sixth district, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE:

At the recent meeting of the Democratic Committee of Christian county, the committee did me the honor to endorse me by unanimous vote as the candidate of the Democracy of Christian county for the nomination for State Senator in the Sixth senatorial district. This action was taken without solicitation on my part, after the committee had adopted a motion declaring it to be the purpose of the committee itself to pass upon the claims of candidates in the county and make recommendations for the various offices. In view of this endorsement by the party authority, I am a candidate for senator in the sense that I am in the hands of the Democratic committee of Christian county and subject to further party action. The district went Republican last year by nearly 900 majority and it is not a time for a factional fight over what may be the empty honor of leading a forlorn hope. If the party believes that it is a time when the office should seek the man and not the man the office, I am willing to obey any call or bow to any decision my party may make in the matter.

Very Respectfully,
CHAS. M. MEACHAM.

At Montgomery, Ala., Thursday a crazy preacher named Windham invited Rev. Sam P. Jones into his room at a hotel and after locking the door told him that unless he went with him to Dothan to marry him and then took him with him to hold revival meetings he would kill him. Fortunately for the evangelist, a bell-boy came for him to answer a telephone call just in time to get him out of the scrape and the insane man was arrested.

Esq. Joseph E. Moseley, whose announcement as a candidate for State Senator appeared in the Kentuckian Thursday, is a prominent farmer of the Pembroke district, who recently received a flattering call to run for sheriff. He has been a member of the Fiscal Court and was engaged in business in this city until a few months ago. Esq. Moseley is a clever gentleman and a good Democrat.

Four or five witnesses have so far testified that Judge James Hargis was directly implicated in the conspiracy to get Jim Cockrell out of the way in Jackson. Mose Felner repeated his story given in the examining trial. It looks like a mistrial is about the only thing that will save the Judge.

The Court of Appeals in an exhaustive opinion, the whole court sitting, affirmed the decision of Judge Wm. Reed, of the McCracken circuit court, in the expert case of Pa duach, which means that the city has the lawful right to work its prisoners upon the streets.

May wheat dropped 34 cents on the Chicago market Thursday. No damage was done to the growing crop by the late freeze and the prospects are very fine for a big yield.

The body of Paul Jones has been placed in the receiving vault of the American church of the Holy Trinity in Paris to await the arrival of the naval squadron which is to bring the Admiral's remains to America.

Japan has lodged a formal protest with France upon the idea that Rojstevsky is still in the harbors of Coochin China. The Russians have succeeded in "losing" their squadron and Japan is kept guessing where it is.

HARD AT WORK.

All of the Teams on Paper
Seem to Have the Best Chance for Honors.

Every manager in the K. I. T. league is up and at them these days and when the season opens May 4 there will be six of the strongest teams ever seen in the organization in the field. It is the third year of the league's existence and they are all out to win the bunting this season.

Everybody in Henderson is pretty well satisfied with the team. There is no one who will not acknowledge that the team is stronger than the "Blue Birds" of 1904 were at any time.

Even at that it is the present plan to make one or two shifts with an idea of strengthening the club. At this early stage the men have demonstrated that they are all good hitters and clean fielders. The finer points of the game will be drilled into the members of the caste between this and the opening of the season barring accidents which are liable to occur at any time, the outfit will be ready for the big show when the gong calls them to the post.

In Vincennes they are dreaming of taking the pennant to the same old place that marked the fort where Alice and her folks gathered when the Indians were shying tomahawks and things at them from the underbrush. Perry D. Green, of the Vincennes Capital, writes that the team is already better than anything in the Kitty last season and that Eddie Kolb has not stopped making plans to add to the strength of his organization. If Mr. Green's prophecy of winning the pennant comes true it is to be hoped that the team will not win so many games that the league will die of too much Vincennes. The team really looks strong on paper and will by all odds be well up in the fight.

Cairo is having its troubles if the sport writers down in the Egyptian village are to be taken at their word. The men on the team are nearly all new ones and though they have been proclaimed as stars of the eighty-ninth magnitude all winter they do not suit the fans who have seen them at work. Consequently there has been a deal of knocking on the players and Manager McCarthy has ordered the gates to the park closed while practice is going on. Only the stockholders in the club are allowed to watch the antics of the youngsters. It really looks pretty bad for Cairo this year despite the numerous predictions of M. Jags Farnhaber and others who are all the goods in that city.

Paducah seems to be one of the strongest clubs in the league. The men have been playing together for several weeks and have the advantage of a two weeks training with Toledo. Besides the club has played several creditable games with major league teams. Paducah is the team to be feared by all others in the K. I. T. In 1905, Lord is still unsettled and threatens to secure two or three men from the Toledo team. The organization plays in Evansville April 21, 22, and 23. A good line up on the respective merits of the Indians and the local team may be secured by watching the result of the game in Evansville by Henderson next Tuesday and the Paducah series. And team in the league that beats Paducah will have to hurry.

The result of the two games Princeton has played with Evansville shows that the Infants have failed to bolster up their team in many places before the season opens. John S. Ray, manager of the newest club in the league, can be depended on to give the Princeton fans a good team. He knew that his men were no match for the Evansvillians when they went into the series and has not stopped signing men. Ray is a foxy old boy and will wait to watch.

The only team in the league where the players have not reported is Hopkinsville. Lou Rutledge, manager, will call his huskies in early this week. He has about thirty men under contract and he thinks he will have no trouble in building up a winner out of the material furnished him. All his players are more or less unknown to the baseball world.

to take possession. A new site and a much better one for the park has been secured but the club will be put to a large expense in fitting up the grounds for the season's battles. Every city in the league sympathizes with the game fellows who have made it possible for Hopkinsville to have a team.

With this review it can be seen which teams are strong and the weak ones can be picked out. Henderson, Paducah and Vincennes look the strongest on paper. Cairo is hiding its light behind closed gates and there is no telling what sort of a bunch will come forth for the championship contest. Princeton will have to strengthen and Hopkinsville is unknown save for its manager and one or two players and it must be acknowledged that Lou Rutledge cannot be turned down by any developer of players in this league.—Gleaner.

Contest Closes April 29th.

The contest inaugurated by The Herald as to what two of Kentucky's sons should be honored by having their statues placed in the Hall of Statuary will close on Saturday, April 29th.

In this contest The Herald offered $25 in four prizes—one of $10, one of $7.50, one of $5, one of $2.50—to those students in Kentucky colleges or public schools who name the two men who are selected by the majority of all those not students who express an opinion as to what two men should be so honored. The purpose of The Herald in inaugurating this contest and in offering these prizes was to arouse interest in the study of the lives of Kentucky's dead sons who served well their country and reflected honor on their State.

We ask every one who sends in any selection to give the reason why, in his judgment, the two men he names should be honored above other distinguished dead. We hope a large number of the people of Kentucky will express their preference, and that in each and every school in the State attention will be called to this contest that the students may have their interest directed to the study of the history of the State and of the times during which Kentucky had a world-wide fame as the birthplace and home of great men.

No selection will be considered in determining the result of the contest which is not received by the 29th of April, and the prizes will be awarded to those who make the first selections.

We again ask the papers of the State to call attention to this contest and hope that it may result in reviving to a certain extent a knowledge of and an admiration for those to whom Kentucky and the world owe so much.—From The Lexington Herald of April 16.

A TITLED SOCIALIST

COUNTRESS OF WARWICK HAS JOINED RANKS OF SOCIALISTS.

Beautiful and Influential Woman to Work for the Cause—No Sudden Whim, But Conviction's Growth of Years.

Socialists' ranks in England have a new supporter. No less a personage than the beautiful countess of Warwick, Chateline castle, country seat, town-house, mistress of many broad acres—23,000 or so—the countess has cast in her lot with the people that stand for radical things, change in existing conditions in England, for a readjustment of the land holdings. This is Lady Warwick's creed, as given by herself to a correspondent of the New York World: "Adult suffrage, irrespective of sex; disestablishment and disendowment of all churches; abolition of land monopoly; the abolition of the house of lords; abolition of all indirect taxation; free maintenance of children in state schools; abolition of school rates; nationalization of the land; control of labor on cooperative principles, and 48 hours the maximum of a week's work."

THE COUNTESS OF WARWICK.

To understand the above mentioned list of suggested reforms, one must have a better understanding of conditions in rural, commercial and political England than that possessed by the average American; but this much is patent, the countess of Warwick is espousing the cause of the many, not engrossed in the pleasures and duties of a mere leader of society. It is socialism rather than society that appeals to the wife of the earl of Warwick.

Of a truth she confesses herself very weary of the latter, says society consists of bores and those that are bored; that she has ever tried not to be content among the bores, and now has decided to escape from being bored.

The earl of Warwick does not go so far as his wife, especially on such questions, but he sympathizes and helps in many ways, does not oppose her. It is no caprice, no mere momentary enthusiasm, the countess' joining of the social democratic federation. For several years her sympathies have been with the labor party of England; the reason she gives for her stand with the party is that neither of the great political parties, conservatives and liberals, is democratic enough to further the interests of labor unless forced to do so by a strong and united labor party in the house of commons. The countess declares: "I hope that eventually the labor party will so control the house of commons as to be able to place the economics of this country (England) on a very different footing."

In America we are more or less used to see women try "to mix up in politics," as it is rather scornfully phrased, but in this country we have nothing to equal the interest shown by the English woman in state affairs. She does not mix in, she is in; as a social power she wields a strong grip and influence, she keeps intellectual interest in political matters, is much better equipped than her American sister to take part in shaping governmental.

English novels now and then give us a glimpse of this place held by the English woman of high degree in the political world, and the newspapers occasionally, as in the instances of the countess of Warwick, acquaint us with the fact that the English society woman is a woman that has a broad grasp of public affairs. We read of Lady Thelborne's electioneering in the interests of her husband, of the countess of Somersdale striving to get votes for somebody, but are just opening our eyes to realization of the decided power in the hands of the ladies across the water.

In this respect of national feeling, it seems to us the American woman is behind the English. It may be the former could never, so different are conditions in America, have opportunity to take just such a position; here state and church and society not being so closely bound together. But it would not be a bad thing if educated, clever, zealous women here were to inform themselves of social needs, the countess of Warwick is by no means the only one of her country women well acquainted with the working of her government.

Insulting.

Lawyer (cross-examining witness)—What was your maid at the time, madam?
Lady—She was in my boudoir arranging my hair.

Lawyer—And were you there also?
Lady (indignantly)—Sir!—Casella's.

Easily Accomplished.
"How do you manage to keep your temper so consistently?"

"Very easily," answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "I do it by being lucky and never trying to have my own way most of the time."—Washington Star.

MARY MAGDALENE AND THE RISEN CHRIST.

Resurrection of a Forlorn Hope

By WILLIS SCOTT

CLARISSA was a poor, lone little seamstress. Her pale, thin cheeks, and stooping shoulders and needle-pricked fingers told of long hours spent over the sewing machine. It was so hard to make even a living. Clarissa was all alone in the world.

One bright ray of hope there was amidst all the gloom. It had flashed into the mind of Clarissa nearly a year before at Easter time, and ever since then it had rested on her like a cheery beacon light of hope. She had chanced one day to pass the fancy goods counter in one of the big department stores, and her quick, hungry eyes had taken in at a glance the dainty display of needlework, and she had noted amongst them the many Easter novelties which ingenuity and deft fingers had devised. She had not time to linger, but she never seemed to get the time from the daily tasks. Now, however, a new thought had come to her, her inspiration," she called it, and day and night since that last Easter vision at the fancy goods counter it had been uppermost in her mind. She would make something for the next Easter. The boldness of the thought made her tremble. But the idea would not down, and though she over and over again told herself that it was foolish, she planned how she would work it out. But what could she do?

One day when passing the markets she noticed a sign—"Eggs, 60 cents per doz." Eggs were a rare luxury to Clarissa. The high price caught her eye at once. It made her gasp to think of the price, and she wondered who could be rich enough to afford them. When she got back to her bare room the thought of eggs at prohibitive prices kept floating before her mind. At that moment a bit of yellow satin caught her eye lying on the table and again "Eggs, 60 cents per doz." floated before her vision. Now, there is not much connection between eggs at 60 cents a dozen and a bit of yellow satin, but, without saying just why, Clarissa picked up the bit of cloth and as she held it in her hands it struck her that it was the exact shade of an egg's yolk. The dainty fingers moved, by the thought soon had a puff of round ball made which for all the world looked like an egg's yolk. Why not make the white of the egg and have a fried egg, she thought. With a bit of cotton and a scrap of chiffon she went at it and ere long had lying before her on the table a very fair representation of an egg. As she sat looking at it and wondering what good it was now that it was made, the thought suddenly flashed over her that Easter and eggs were very appropriate, and with the word "Easter" penciled over the egg it would make a very dainty novelty. Here then was the solution of her problem. Here was her opportunity.

The next few days found Clarissa in a fever of nervous anxiety. She went half hungry that she might have the little thus saved for the buying of materials for her eggs. In the course of a few weeks she was able to save enough to get a couple of dozen of the eggs ready to take to the store.

In fear and trembling she sought out the manager of the fancy goods department and half hesitatingly opened the package before him. He seemed interested, and told her she might leave them.

And Clarissa waited, and as opportunity offered she stole by the fancy goods department and looked to see if her precious Easter eggs were still there. One day one was missing and the next day another was gone. One day after day went by and still the eggs rested in their place in the show case. Her heart grew heavier and heavier. The two that were sold would not begin to pay her for the materials she had put into the eggs and if they were not sold what would she do? It was the day before Easter and as she went by the counter in the morning after delivering the work which she had set up most of the Easter novelties, she saw that all the eggs, save the two which had been sold, were still reposing on the counter.

Her heart, which had been growing heavier for each day as she saw her eggs unsold, now sank to the lowest depths and the bright hope which had stirred her heart for weeks seemed dead within her.

It was a dreary Easter for the little seamstress. The weather, as though in sympathy with her drooping spirits and the gloom of her mind, was a perfect sun had hid his face and the rain pelted at the panes of her one small window in harmony with the impatient and rebellious thoughts which beat within her heart. The hopes of almost a year had been cruelly crushed. The bright vision of something better than the plain sewing which she had been doing for so many years had vanished. The hope of earning a better living was gone.

The longer she brooded over her disappointment the gloomier did the situation appear, and when the clouds lifted outside and a burst of sunshine crept in at the window and fell at her feet she felt it a sort of impudent intrusion. If she could not be bright within she did not want to have it bright about her, and she arose with petulant haste to pull the shade, but at that instant a knock at the door startled her and turned her from her purpose. The knock was repeated ere she could summon courage to open the door, and when she did she could scarce believe her senses, for there stood the manager of the fancy goods department. His smile reassured her as he said:

"Miss Brown, your Easter eggs found a ready sale and if we had four instead of two dozen we could have sold them. Here are six dollars, your share of the profits of the sales."

Like one in a dream she took the bills in her cold, trembling hands, and looked first at them and then at the manager. She had never before had so much money at one time. It almost seemed as though she had been a moment before wanted to shut from her vision. But now it brought a new message to her heart. The tomb of her heart where she thought she had looked a dead hope burst open and forth sprang a better and brighter self. A new life and new hope lay before her, and to the question of the manager, again repeated while the bewildered girl strove to collect her thoughts, she at last managed to answer yes. Clarissa had had a resurrection day.

NAKED IN STREETS.

Two Men, One Woman and a Boy, Declare They Ex- perience Perfect Peace.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 19.—An unknown young Scotchman, accompanied by James Sharp and wife and their fourteen-year-old son, Lee, created a sensation here by running down Broadway as naked as Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. When arrested they were singing and shouting "Hallelujah."

The Scotchman, when arrested, announced that he was God and said it would be futile to arrest them; that this action was the fulfillment of a prophecy. "In three days," he said, "we will be found dead, and then will occur the resurrection."

Sharp said he was converted two years ago, when a snake fell on his farm in Woodward county, Okla. When questioned concerning his action, he said:

For two years I have been preaching that God would make his appearance in the flesh, and when he appeared I knew and became submissive to his will. He told us to cast off everything we had, even our clothing, and to follow him. We did so and I have never before known such perfect peace.

"We gave away our money and clothing. You do not understand it now, but will see it all clearly in a day or two."

When separated from the man they thought to be God, Sharp and his family donned their clothing and said, "It has been fulfilled. We will not do so again. God will not require it."

Asked if they did not feel ashamed when appearing nude on the streets, the couple replied with a very positive negative, saying they never experienced such perfect peace. All four of the fanatics are apparently insane. They are in the county jail, and will be taken before the insane board.

SOON PARTED.

A Fool And His Money Staid Together Only Six Days.

Goldfield, Nev., April 14.—Goldfield saloons have been enriched by $35,000, contributed in six days by Ed Chase, an old prospector, who made his first lucky strike a short time ago. He and his partner sold the property for $70,000, and Chase at once began to give his share to the saloons as fast as they would take it. Chase had never had any money before and the possession of thousands proved too much temptation for him.

He filled his pockets with goldpieces and started out Monday afternoon. By Saturday night he was broke, and on the following Monday he started for the hills again. His outfit, consisting of two burrows and prospecting tools, comprised his assets. His former partner advanced him enough money to buy a stock of provisions, and the old man is now seeking another rich claim.

Returns to Kentucky.

We have the pleasure of announcing that Mr. Charles I. Stewart, formerly of Louisville and more recently of Philadelphia, has joined the Herald staff. Mr. Stewart was for years connected with the Louisville Dispatch, a large part of the time having entire charge of that paper, and won for himself the respect, confidence and esteem of those who came in contact with him, as well as a high reputation as a newspaper man by the capacity shown in the editorial control and business management of the paper.

After the failure of the Dispatch, which was inevitable in spite of Mr. Stewart's able and progressive management, he was connected with different papers in Louisville as assistant editor or as managing editor. He was tempted to go from Louisville to the Philadelphia Ledger, with which he has been connected for the past year in a position of importance and responsibility, which he resigned to accept a place on the staff of the Lexington Herald. He will have charge of the business and advertising department. Mr. Frank S. Reed, who has had charge of that department, taking charge of the subscription department, to which he will devote all of his attention. Mr. Stewart will also do a large part of the editorial work on the Herald, and will congratulate our readers upon our good fortune in securing his services for them and bespeak for him the kindly consideration and generous welcome which he is entitled and which we feel confident he will receive.—From The Lexington Herald of April 16.

DESERTS HIS WIFE.

Tilt McDaniel, Barber, Does Vanishing Act.

Clarksville, Tenn., April 19.—Tilt McDaniel, who sold his barber shop in this city last week and left soon afterwards presumably to seek a location for another barber shop, has written to his wife telling her that he has gone to parts unknown, would never return to her, and that she would never hear from him again. McDaniel is now supposed to be in Missouri. He left here for Paris, where he wrote his wife that he would send for her as soon as he had definitely decided where he would locate. He had about $1,000 when he left here, but did not leave enough money with his wife to pay for household expenses.

Paul Jones' Coffin.

Paul Jones' body is in such a wonderful state of preservation that the French medical fraternity has thought the matter interesting enough to make a special report of it to the academy of medicine. According to Doctor Capitain and Doctor Papillaud, who are charged with the measures of identification and care for the further preservation of the body, the fact of its complete immersion in alcohol is insufficient to explain the remarkable case with which the admiral can be recognized, especially since the alcohol had evaporated through a hole in the top of the coffin many years ago.

In making their autopsy the doctors think that they not only found traces of the disease that killed him, but also discovered evidences of methods of preserving bodies which, if familiar a century ago, have completely escaped the attention of modern embalmers. The linen and outer cloth in the coffin, as well as the straw and hay placed around the corpse, are equally well preserved.

TRICE-QUICK.

Popular Young Couple Surprise Their Friends.

Mr. Frank Daggs Trice and Miss Katie Quick were wedded Wednesday evening and left on a bridal trip to Hot Springs, Ark. The ceremony was performed after prayer meeting in the pastor's study at the Methodist church, by Rev. E. L. Southgate, assisted by Rev. C. H. Nash, of the Baptist church.

Only a few near relatives were present. The wedding was quite a surprise, as the young people had kept their plans very closely guarded, although their courtship has been a protracted one.

Mr. Trice is a son of Mr. John B. Trice, cashier of the Planters Bank and Trust Company, and is himself a book-keeper in the same bank. The bride is the pretty and attractive daughter of Mr. John C.
